Table Adasda

The company for which I originally designed Adasda as an office table preferred something else in the end. Too bad. Because Adasda has since proven itself in many households and offices. The principle is simple: a smoothly coated plywood board is sunk into a filigree steel frame. This makes the plywood layers invisible, and the table looks light and as if it were made of one piece. With its fresh colours, Adasda makes every room a little more cheerful.
